Practice

Tristan practices primarily in general commercial. Insolvency, taxation/revenue, insolvency, and general equity matters.

[He has appeared unled in all jurisdictions in NSW, as well as in several jurisdictions in QLD and Victoria.

Tristan is equally comfortable being led, and has worked productively with numerous silks. He has also assumed the role of leader, appearing with a junior barrister.

Tristan is particularly focused on obtaining the best possible result for his clients by the most sensible and efficient means possible, leading to judicial officers noting his practical and pragmatic approach to litigation. He is particularly adept at obtaining positive results for his clients in alternative dispute resolution processes.

From 2006 - 2013 Tristan was employed in the in-house litigation team at the Australian Taxation Office, where he was rapidly promoted, spending the final years of his time engaged as Principal Litigator. In this role Tristan handled complex taxation and insolvency matters on behalf of the Commissioner of Taxation, and led a team of litigators. He frequently conducted training and external seminars as a representative of the Commissioner.

From 2013 to 2015, Tristan was engaged as Special Counsel for Cleary's Commercial Lawyers, handling its litigation matters. These matters consisted of general commercial and some Family Law matters.

Tristan commenced at the bar in September 2015 and has developed a thriving practice in general commercial, taxation, revenue, insolvency, building and construction and general equity matters. Tristan has appeared for statutory authorities including the Commissioner of Taxation, Official Trustee in Bankruptcy, and the Fair Work Ombudsman, although the majority of his clients are private rather than public clients.
